Mr. A. W. Harper, on Monday last, purchased of Jacob Harper 44½ acres of land near Midway. Price $100 per acre.

The Grace Morris went up the river on Sunday with a big barge of corn, and returned with 300 barrels of whisky.

The steamer Hibernia passed up the river on Sunday last loaded down to her guards with a miscellaneous cargo, and returned to Louisville Monday with a big trip.

C. G. Hockinsmith, administrator of Wesley A. Gaines, deceased, sold at public auction on Monday 2½ shares of stock in the Frankfort & Peak's Mill turnpike for $2.50 per share.

Wm. Murphy, who has for many years been Constable in the Forks of Elkhorn magisterial district, resigned last Monday, and Frank French was appointed to succeed him. Frank will make a good one.

A large crowd appeared on the streets last Monday, it being court day. The usual number of "swaps" were made in "trading alley" and several horses were offered for sale, but prices ranged too high for the times, and consequently few sales were made.

Within the last two weeks several companies of laborers—both white and black—and carts and mules and wagons have passed through the city en route to the line of the Louisville Southern Railroad, in Anderson and Shelby counties. This seems to be a guaranty that the road will be rapidly pushed forward to completion. The colored laborers are from Virginia and are employed in preference to the Kentucky colored laborers, because they work better and cheaper, as the contractors claim.

Capt. John Abrahams, one of the owners of the steamer Grace Morris, who is a candidate for the Legislature in Henry county, met with a painful accident at Harper's Ferry, in that county, on Saturday. He was kicked in the face by a horse, breaking his jaw-bone and knocking out several of his teeth. He will be confined to the house several weeks.

David A. Peters, auctioneer, reports the following sales of stock on the streets Monday:

13 head of yearling heifers, price $11 per head.
10 head 2-year-old steers, price $19 per head.
1 old cow, $22.50.

1 horse, $35.
1 horse, $53.50.

W. H. Posey, Commissioner of the Circuit Court, reports the following sales made by him on Monday:

A house and lot on the Owen-ton pike owned by Snellin, $200.
76 acres of land on Devil's Hol-low pike, $824.95. John C. Haw-kinn purchaser.

JOS. RITTER.

Death of Mrs. Lena Stewart Pusey.

The news that Mrs. Lena Stewart Pusey had died at her home in Louisville on Tuesday last was received here with sorrow by her numerous friends.

The remains arrived in the city on Wednesday afternoon, and were taken to the home of her father, Dr. John Q. A. Stewart, where the funeral services took place, on Thursday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

After prayer and the singing of a hymn, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," Dr. J. McCluskey Blayne read an appropriate passage of scripture. He then read the following beautiful tribute from the pen of Hon. Jas. A. McKenzie, an intimate friend of Dr. Stewart, who had known the deceased nearly all her life:

IN MEMORIAM.

A beautiful life has been rounded off a sleep. A heart instinct with gentleness, and one that for a moment only knew the unutterable tenderness a mother feels for her first born, has ceased to beat. Lena Stewart Pusey is dead. One short year ago there were orange blossoms, and the bridal veil gave added loveliness to her maidenly blushes, as she lies in the awful isolation of death, and the calls lily, the orchid, and the ascension flower beset the turf that wraps her kindred clay. In all that gave grace to womanhood, youth, beauty, brilliancy of mind, delicacy of feeling, tenderness of heart, loyalty of affection, and the indefinable charm of manner that tends to mold and modify the development of a life, she was queen of all our hearts; she was the priestess of home, with all its sweet idolatries; the handmaiden of charity, with all its tender graces; the guardian angel of religion, with all its wealth of promise. Her going out of life seems the very irony of fate; but sorrow for her going is soothed by the thought that she went at a time when the sun was shining, and the shadows slanting toward high noon, and leaves behind her only sweet memories and unavailing regrets. Age had not chilled her; disease had not deformed her; sorrow had not set its crown of thorns upon her; disappointments, that are the doom of many, were unknown to her. In the flush of life's beautiful morning, like a tired child by the wayside, she went to sleep to awake in the prophetic splendor of an eternal dawn. What further word of consolation could we offer to husband, father, mother, sisters, brother, friend, and neighbor, other than to ask that He who notes the fall of the sparrow, and providently caters for the raven, will, in His wisdom see the best, pour balm and healing into every heart that bleeds.

At the conclusion a prayer was offered, and then the vast con-course of weeping friends followed her remains to their last resting place in our beautiful cemetery.

Rev. Z. T. Cody, pastor of Buck Run Church, will preach at the Baptist Church to-morrow, Sunday, at 7:30 o'clock.

Dr. W. I. Kelly will make his usual visit to our city to-day, when he will be glad to see any persons suffering from any of the diseases mentioned in his card, in another column, at his room at the Capital Hotel.

Mr. J. H. Northcutt, of White Sulphur, was tried in the Scott Circuit Court this week on the charge of assaulting and beating Mr. Sam. Thomas last fall, and was fined $450 and sentenced to confinement in the county jail for 30 days.

Mr. J. P. Wayts, of the Stone & Hines Lumber Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, visited his parents here one day last week. While here he bought 200,000 feet of lumber from Wakefield & West, thus combining business with pleasure. June is a hustler.

A Terrible Explosion.

On last Friday, says the Hartford Herald, at the distillery of Jas. Metcalf, better known as Jas. Cap, near Mangan's Station, Ohio county, the boiler exploded with terrible effect, the escaping steam and falling walls scalded and otherwise severely injured seven men, two of them, Mr. James Nelson and a young man, Poley Hall, were, it is feared, fatally injured. The building and the stone wall which inclosed the boiler are completely wrecked.—Owensboro Inquirer.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was relieved of rheumatism of 10 years standing." Dr. William F. Druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the liver, kidneys or Blood. Only a half-dollar a bottle at Jos. Lecompte's drug store.

Among the Colored Citizens.

By G. H. B.

Died, infant child of Maria Johnson, at 7 o'clock Tuesday, the 3d inst.

The ladies exchange will meet at Mrs. Cook's to night, on Wilkinson street.

Two of our teachers are on the sick list, Misses Ida M. Joyce and C. B. Koberson.

St. John's A. M. E. Church members and pastor have commenced their protracted meeting. They had four additions Wednesday night.

The street running by the A. M. E. Church is being McAdamized. It has not had a coat of rock for fifteen years, so says the community.

Rev. J. W. Wade, the revivalist, will be here Monday to assist Rev. G. H. Burks in the meeting at St. John's A. M. E. Church.

Young men come out and hear him.

One of the most brilliant society events that has taken place for years, was the marriage of Miss Maria Yeizer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yeizer, Sr., and Mr. Thomas Hill, of Chicago, Ill., formerly of this city, which took place at St. John's A. M. E. Church on Monday, March 7th.

Promptly at high noon the bride, who was handsomely attired in bronze green, marvellous satin and natural flowers, leaning on the arm of her future husband, entered the church to the beautiful strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march, where Rev. G. H. Burks, pastor of the church, awaited them at the altar.

The ceremony was brief, but very solemn and impressive, being witnessed by a select few. After the ceremony the bridal party, and a few of the intimate friends of the contracting parties, repaired to the bride's residence, 444 Washington street, where an elegant dinner was served.

After congratulations the newly wedded pair left on the 2 o'clock train for Chicago, their future home, taking with them the best wishes of all present. The numerous and costly presents was an evidence of the high esteem and respect with which both were regarded by their friends.

One of the handsomest presents to the bride was an elegant gold watch and chain, being the gift of the groom. Among those present from abroad we noticed Mrs. Ben Franklin, of Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Julia Rice and Miss Elesse Marshall, of Cincinnati, Ohio; and Mr. Wm. Crampion, of Chicago, Ill.; besides regrets being received from a number of friends.

We wish the young couple many years of happiness and bliss.

He Only Wanted Five Minutes.

(Washington Letter.)

"You were speaking of Stephen Field as a grave and sedate justice, now that he is full of years and honor, and occupies a seat in one of the greatest judicial bodies in the world," said another of the party, "but I remember him when he was as gay and rollicking a lad as the best of us. When the mining camp at what is now Nevada City was first organized, young lawyer Field was elected a justice of the peace. Probably the toughest member of the new camp was a noted desperado, Jack Reynolds by name. One day Reynolds was arrested on a charge of horse stealing. It was a trial by jury, with Justice Field presiding. The evidence was not strong enough to convict, but as every body was anxious to get rid of Reynolds the verdict was: 'We found the prisoner at the bar not guilty, but if he is wise he will leave the camp in thirty minutes.' The verdict amused the young justice immensely, but the court was greatly annoyed.

Rumor has it the county court has a scheme to publish a report of the expenditures for several years back from the county levy, and of the financial condition. It is expected to be put in print as soon as those who have drawn the money will report their names, and how much each got. It may take several years to get in all the returns, and meanwhile most citizens pass to "the home beyond the river," but the court hopes "to get there all the same." If any names or amounts are omitted, it will make little difference in the balance sheet—the unknown quantity can be corralled under the head of "missing election returns." A rose by any other name smells as well.

The Prohibition Convention which met in Louisville on Thursday, the 3d inst., nominated the following State ticket.

For Governor, Judge Fontaine T. Fox, Jr., of Bullitt county. For Lieutenant-Governor, W. L. Gordon, of Hopkins county. For Auditor of State, Dr. A. T. Henderson, of Carter county. For Treasurer of State, L. K. Dyas of Grant county. For Attorney-General, Hon. Josiah Harris, of McCracken county. For Superintendent of Public Instruction, Prof. Daniel W. Stephenson, of Bracken county.

A Friend In Need.

Alfred Sanderson, Esq., editor of the Western Broker, a popular trade paper at Chicago, in his last issue makes the following complimentary mention of a physician of this city:

"It is an old saying that a friend in need is a friend indeed, and one is apt to appreciate a friend when he turns up at an opportune moment. During the recent visit of the editor of the Western Broker to Louisville he was taken ill with a relapse of nervous prostration, from which he had been suffering for several months, and which threatened, for the time, serious consequences. In the emergency we woke from his slumbers Dr. Wm. Hume Harris, who was a guest in the same hotel, who gave immediate relief, although similar attacks have puzzled some eminent doctors, and the symptoms have not since returned. It is hardly in our sphere to advertise medical men, but as this gentleman is just commencing the practice of medicine in Louisville we feel ourselves called upon, under the circumstances, to introduce him to any of our friends in that city who may be troubled with nervous affections." —Course Journal.

Dr. Harris was for several years a resident of this city, and only located in Louisville last fall.

Dry Bones.

There is something fearful in the streets of Frankfort. Such hills and hollows—such mud holes and jagged edges, it makes the heart sick and the head swim to compass their heights and depths.

There are more than forty two places where you can hide a pig of eleven months growth in the middle of the street, and nobody notice any undulation in the surface. Only a few days ago a fellow got $6 for playing circus across one of these "pits of destruction," and ninety-nine more daily dance about their edges, hoping to break a leg, or disjoint an arm, or contuse a midrib, and draw a pension from the city. Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?

What may be said of the streets is praise for the pavements of Frankfort. Eleven hundred maple trees have a yearly contract to inflict injury and gross damage on these pavements. The camels of Egypt and Abyssinia haven't hump the humps you will see in twenty minutes walk about town. Don't hurt the maples, but smooth their roots and compose the uprooted side-walks. Level out the holes so the tiny No. 13 slipper won't slash in the water of the last rain, and make the girls swallow the gum they are chewing.

Rumor has it the county court has a scheme to publish a report of the expenditures for several years back from the county levy, and of the financial condition. It is expected to be put in print as soon as those who have drawn the money will report their names, and how much each got. It may take several years to get in all the returns, and meanwhile most citizens pass to "the home beyond the river," but the court hopes "to get there all the same." If any names or amounts are omitted, it will make little difference in the balance sheet—the unknown quantity can be corralled under the head of "missing election returns." A rose by any other name smells as well.

The obituary record of defunct county expenditures would look well, bound in a volume, together with the published reports of city finances for several years past—all in red morocco binding, beveled edges, and gilt ornaments.

Some persons are getting fanatic on the subject of boring for gas—natural gas. There is already more natural gas produced daily in Frankfort than would run 350 mills and factories, if properly collected and applied. There might be some cases of spontaneous combustion on the part of those who had to wait for the collector to make his rounds. But what of that, it would only show the richness of the particular deposit.

But has anybody asked the permission of the Frankfort Gas Co. to bore for gas? The city kindly gave this corporation its gas property, with exclusive privileges, for something like a thousand years or less, and of course they will hold the auger while the enterprising citizen is engaged in sinking a shaft in the bosom of the lower siliurian.

Franklin county has appropriated money enough for turnpikes to almost build a railroad to Georgetown, and yet some of those influential fellows, for whose special benefit some of the turnpikes were built, refuse to assist their neighbors, who were taxed to build their turnpikes in getting a wee-bit of a railroad to haul their tobacco, corn, and hogs, and cattle, and eggs, and maple sugar to market for something less than half their value. Now is that "far and square?"

What about that free delivery business from the Post-office? Is there a hitch? Three or four or five or six months is a long time to wait when the mouth is puckered for the feast. What's the use of holdin' up a plumb before a fellow, and then mortify his feelings by suggestin' that plums might be him sick.

WAKE UP.

A General Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a great restorative. The secret which this great balsamic syrup produces in the human organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, not abrupt and violent. As this account is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates the system in a healthy condition is no reason, of itself, that healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, idleness, corruption, carelessness, unskillful construction. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant sleep are the best preventive against malarial fever, and variably attend its systematic use. It is, however, the best protective against malaria, and a first-rate diuretic.

In testimony whereof, I have caused an impression of the Great Seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to be affixed at Frankfort, the 26th day of February, 1857.

GEORGE A. LEWIS,
Editor and Publisher.

FRANKFORT, MARCH 12, 1887.

Death of Hon. Joseph H. Gardner.

Our community was shocked on Monday evening by the announcement that Hon. Joseph H. Gardner, of Magoffin county, had died at the residence of Mr. M. H. P. Williams, sr., of apoplexy. Mr. Gardner had spent the day in Frankfort mingling with the crowds of people assembled on the street, to many of whom he was well known, and had announced himself, in a short speech at the Court-house, as a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. He appeared to be a man in robust health and felt no complaint until about 5 o'clock in the evening, when a sense of dizziness came over him and his senses became confused. Dr. Hume was hastily summoned, who, in company with Dr. James, hastened to the bedside of the sufferer and discerned that life was fast fleeting. The electric battery was applied but it failed to revived him, and at half past six o'clock he was dead.

Mr. Gardner was a native of Magoffin county, Ky. In early life he was a successful merchant at Salyerville, but since 1860 he has been a farmer and trader. He had just returned from Macon, Ga., where he had disposed of some stock. He had represented his county and district in both branches of the Legislature, having served as a member of the House of Representatives one term before the war, and as a Senator two terms since the war. As a public man he possessed broad and liberal views, free from the narrow prejudices so often found in members of the Legislature. He was a consistent member of the Christian Church, a fond and loving father and husband, and had married a niece of our fellow-townsmen M. H. P. Williams, sr., who, with nine children, survive to mourn his loss.

His remains were, on Tuesday morning, shipped to his late home in Salyerville, by way of Catlettsburg. Mrs. M. H. P. Williams, sr., and Ben. G. Williams, Esq., accompanied the remains.

The question of all others that now affects the happiness and welfare of the citizens of central Kentucky, and more especially the citizens of Franklin county, is the construction of a railroad from the richest mineral regions of Kentucky to Frankfort.

From the tone of the press throughout the counties of Montgomery, Clark, Bourbon, Scott and Fayette, it would seem that the citizens of those counties are fully alive to the importance of such railroad facilities, and it is to be regretted that there is not such a public spirit manifesting itself that would make it practicable for these counties, with the aid of Franklin, to raise sufficient means to build a railroad independent of railroad construction companies, and thus save to the counties thousands of dollars in the cost of construction and management of the road. But, as the general opinion shared by the people at the same price now paid by Cin-large in this section of the country that we are too poor to live otherwise than in subjection to the exaction of a railroad monopoly, we must turn our attention in the direction of things that are moving around us and let others who are disposed to benefit us by supplying our necessities, do so by our consent and with our meager contributions. If we fail to do this Frankfort will find herself, before many days, a way station for passengers only, while the busy traffic in the riches of the world shuns us and favors our rivals, Georgetown, Versailles and Lawrenceburg, who are now earnestly contesting for the vantage ground.

This is no idle fancy, for already work has commenced on the railroad between Midway and Georgetown, and when this is completed the short gap between Versailles and Lawrenceburg will be the only link lacking in the connection between the Cincinnati Southern at Georgetown, and the Louisville Southern at Lawrenceburg.

The importance of filling this short gap will be so evident to the managers of these two roads that they will soon complete the connection, and the route has already been surveyed and agreed upon.

It is, therefore, quite evident that Georgetown becomes the important point to be reached by a railroad from Frankfort, as it seems to be a conceded fact that a railroad will be extended from Georgetown through the mineral fields of eastern Kentucky to the seaboard.

Eastern capitalists now realize the advantages of such a road, and rival companies are now combating with each other bitterly for the right of way and county subscriptions.

The committee of citizens appointed by the various counties are now holding weekly meetings at Paris to hear and consider propositions from the Frankfort, Paris & Georgetown railroad company, and the Kentucky Union railway company.

The citizens of Franklin county can feel no interest in the Kentucky Union railway company because it does not propose to come to Frankfort, under any circumstances, while the Frankfort, Paris & Georgetown railroad company proposes to build a road from Frankfort via Georgetown and Paris, through the coal and iron fields of Kentucky to the East.

Let us, then, bend our energies to secure the success of the F., P. & G. road and not hesitate to vote a subscription of $150,000 to this road which will permanently locate in this county property of the company to the value of $300,000, taxable for all time for county and municipal purposes. More than this sum of $150,000 will be expended among the laborers and merchants of this county during the construction of the road, and $30,000 or $40,000 will annually thereafter be expended in the county for wages and salaries of operatives and employees of the road.

Other advantages too numerous to mention will follow the building of this road, one of which the merchant and the laborer are alike interested in. The merchant of Frankfort can then have his eastern goods delivered to him here for 26 cents per hundred pounds freight, a sum shared by the people at the same price now paid by Cincinnati merchants instead of 40 cents, the price he now pays. The merchant can then sell them to the consumer for prices ranging from 5 to 20 per cent. less than present prices.

It may be urged by some that our citizens of Bald Knob, Benson and Bridgeport precincts are not directly interested in this road, and will not, therefore, vote for the subscription.

In answer to the first proposition we have only to say that they have a like interest with all in securing the necessities of life at lower prices than the present, and in securing cheap rates of transportation for all our productions.

We cannot believe that any of our citizens, who live in the portions of the county above named, are insensible to the benefits that will accrue to them from the construction of this road.

It is true that the citizens of that portion of the county do not possess as much of this world's goods as some others, and they will remember the time, not more than a dozen years ago, when they were toiling and dragging along the mud roads, and cried to the county court to help them out of the mire, and right nobly did the magistrates come to their rescue by appropriating thousands of dollars out of the pockets of the people of the whole county towards building the turnpikes they now enjoy. It is no exaggeration to say that at least three-fourths of the money thus expended was raised by taxation upon the citizens of Frankfort and of the county lying on the eastern side of the Kentucky river. No complaint was made at this taxation, but all cheerfully acquiesced in it as a public necessity altogether beneficial to the county. These being the facts that can be ascertained by an inspection of the county records, we cannot believe that people who enjoy such benefits can be ungrateful when asked by those who have cheerfully assisted them, to raise a subscription so beneficial to all.

Miss Pattie Marshal gave a social entertainment on Thursday evening.

RECTAL ULCER,

The great bane of humanity, is cured if the patient does not call too late. This is the greatest little or nothing was known before the BRINKHOPF discoveries. Many patients are troubled with lame back, headache, dyspepsia, itching increased at night, kidney and bladder trouble, that are not easily removed.

It is now a well established fact that many diseases of the stomach, liver, kidney, bladder, lungs, heart, etc., are caused by rectal ulcer, aggravated by the coexistence of PILLES, FISTULAE, FISSURES, RECTAL ULCER.

FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT.

FRANKFORT, MARCH 12, 1887.

The river is on a boom, but not high enough to impede navigation. The packets are all running on time with plenty to do.

Our city has been alive with strangers the past week, horsemen, cattle buyers, mule buyers and speculators of all kinds. They find this to be a good market.

R. E. Gaines, Esq., has received propositions from parties who are anxious to commence the manufacture of his improved steam pressure regulator. This invention by Frankfort genius is bound to find a place among the improvements of the mechanical world.

The advertisement of Messrs. Light & Claassen, as plumbers, gas and steam fitters, will be found in another column. Both of these gentlemen are practical mechanics of considerable experience and their promptness and attention to business will insure a fair share of the public patronage in this important line of business.

W. H. Murray on Wednesday swore out a warrant against Mr. W. Craik, superintendent of the Frankfort cemetery, charging him with trespassing on the cemetery grounds, by permitting cattle to graze and trample among the graves. Judge Thomson issued the warrant and set the trial for Monday, the 14th, at 10 o'clock.

On Tuesday night Mlle Rhea was greeted by a large and appreciative audience. She personated "The Widow" in a happy and graceful style, and was greeted with frequent applause. The characters supporting her acquitted themselves admirably and a Frankfort audience adds its praise to the charming French actress' splendid reputation. It is to be hoped that the managers of our Opera House will continue to afford to the public many such entertainments.

C. W. and H. Finch have about completed their new block of five store-rooms on Bridge street, one of which they will occupy as a meat store, the other four for rent. These rooms are in one of the very best places for business in the city. The bridge forming the only connection between North and South Frankfort compels people going from one place to the other to pass along this street. Besides this, people coming to the city on the Lawrenceburg, Shelbyville, Devil's Hollow, Benson and Flat Creek pikes, in fact everybody living in that part of the country on the west side of the river, to take advantage of the free bridge, must pass right along the front of these buildings. Hence it will be easily seen that any person with a little energy and push can do an immense business in one of these rooms where thousands of people pass daily. Making it a rare opportunity for any one to get a good business location. For terms, etc., apply to

The Closing Hours of Congress and the Educational Bill.

More than 2,000,000 citizens of the United States, a large portion of whom are voters, have petitioned this Congress for the passage of the Educational Bill.

Over 100,000 of these requests were over autograph signatures while others have been presented collectively from National Associations, Societies, Churches, etc.

The Washington National Republican, in a breakfast-table letter to the President, says:

MR. PRESIDENT: The House of Representatives of the forty-ninth Congress in its closing hours presents to the people a sad spectacle indeed. It is not a deliberative body; it has simply reduced itself into a cabal to gag legislation and thereby defeat the will of the people. The chief conspirators are Carlisle, Randall, and Morrison. The Blair bill, a wise and patriotic measure, founded on the principle of promoting the general welfare by free education, which is the cornerstone of republican institutions, is now being deliberately strangled to death by the three democrats named, all leaders in the Democratic party.

The following from the Charleston, S. C., News and Courier is of interest showing how the South received this condition of things:

A HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY.

The importance of the Blair educational bill to every Southern State has been too clearly shown and is to fully understood to require to be argued anew. Recent reports from Louisiana give the unpleasant information that over one-half of the voters of that State cannot read or write, and that the number of illiterates is increasing from year to year rather than diminishing. Expenditures for educational purposes have reached high-water mark, it is believed, in nearly every Southern State, if not in all, and Federal aid must be obtained or a great number of children, white and black, will grow up in hopeless ignorance.

The supposed constitutional objections to the Blair bill have been overcome, or, at any rate, the bill has been shown to be as constitutional as many other less deserving measures that have been passed without any objection. It is of supreme consequence, if it is of any consequence at all, that the people shall be educated. If intelligence, in short, is an element of value in the exercise of suffrage—if it is necessary for the success of free institutions and of a government of and by the people, that they who control the government shall have trained minds, or at least enough education to enable them to read and write—then is this bill of more importance than even the bills for the construction of a navy, or of fortifications, or for any other purpose.

There is always, moreover, the special and most urgent reason in favor of the particular bill in question, that where illiteracy is most glaring and most dangerous, as it is in the south, it has been made an element of peril to the south and to the whole country, by the action of the nation in imposing the suffrage on a race of people who were utterly unprepared and unfit for it, and who are hopelessly unable to educate themselves.

No evidence or reason whatever is given, or can be given, we believe, to justify the expectation that the Southern States can successfully deal with the pressing problem of educating this class of their illiterate citizens, and those who are soon to become citizens.

These are the general facts. A reasonable and proper bill which would give the needed aid, and would correct in every respect the condition of things to which it relates, has passed the Senate by an overwhelming vote, but is now tied up in a committee of the House of Representatives, with no prospect that it will be allowed to be voted upon. The supporters of the bill would make no objection if it were fairly voted down. But they cannot get a chance to have the vote taken. Only by the action of the committee on rules, at this stage of the session, can the bill be taken up and put upon its passage, but the majority of the committee—Speaker Carlisle, Mr. Morrison, and Mr. Randall constituting that majority—have so flatly refused, or have failed to allow it to come before the House.

It is computed that not more than seventy members of the House are opposed to the bill in any of its essential features. The majority of the House, therefore, are simply gagged by a majority of the committee on rules; and, in the last analysis of the situation, hundreds of thousands of white and black children are being deprived of the benefits and advantages of an education, because of the abuse of an arbitrary parliamentary rule by one or two men. The forms and restraints which were intended and devised for the protection of the rights of a minority in the House are thus made the means of muzzling and shackling the majority, and of inflicting an irreparable injury upon the children, the future citizens, of the country. It is a curious state of things to begin with, and it is a dangerous, undemocratic and altogether wrong condition of things to contemplate in its course and assumed consequences.

Kentucky Sunday-school Union.

The Executive Committee of the Kentucky S. S. Union takes great pleasure in announcing that the State convention for 1887 will be held July 12, 13 and 14; that a cordial invitation from the beautiful city of Henderson has been accepted, and that all Sunday-school workers in the State are earnestly invited to begin now to make arrangements to attend. Considering the facts that Kentucky has not had a convention for five years, and never but once west of Elizabethtown; that they sent up a strong plea to have this convention, that a large majority of the district presidents favored Western Kentucky, and the great progress which has been made in Sunday-school work throughout that great section, the Executive Committee were unanimous in their conclusions that Henderson ought to have it, and further, that a convention there would be a great success. Henderson is accessible by river and by three lines of railway. Delegates who need to pass through Louisville can take the St. Louis Air Line train about 8 a. m., and be in Henderson at 3 p. m. The programme will be arranged at an early day and distributed thoroughly. Eleven district institutions and about 100 county conventions to be held, and the International Convention at Chicago, June 1st, to which Kentucky will send 56 delegates, will all help in preparing for the State Convention.

Let this advance notice be well remembered.

There was again a large house last night in the Academy of Music to witness the performance of the highly sensational and mirth provoking drama, "Neck and Neck," which was noticed in our issue of yesterday. Tonight the play presented was a very different character and one which all should see. Of "Olive Branch," as played by this company, a recent number of the Ottawa Free Press said: "The piece is one full of life, fire and continuing interest from beginning to end. The scenic effects were well contrived, and all the parts smoothly and skillfully carried out." The audience was greatly interested and enjoyed the play.

Mr. H. C. Stetson, with a company of actors, gave a series of lectures on the art of acting, and the audience was greatly interested in the performances.

Miss Hannah Ingram, as the Queen of Sheba, was good. She possesses a pretty face, a willowy, well-shaped figure and a decided dramatic force.

MADIX'S, GA., January, 1886.
For twelve or fourteen years I have been a subject of suffering from a terrible disease which ran through my body and finally it was pronounced a tertian form. My head, face and shoulders became almost a mass of corruption, and finally the disease commenced eating away my skull bone. I became so horribly repulsive for so many years that I was afraid to let people see me. I used large quantities of most noted blood remedies and applied to nearly all physicians near me, but my condition continued to grow worse, and all said that I must surely die. My bones became the seat of excruciating pain; my nights were miserably disturbed, and life became a burden to me. I chanced to see an advertisement of B. B. and sent one dollar to W. C. Bichmore & Co., merchants of our place, and they provided a bottle for me. It was used with decided benefit, and after eight or ten bottles had been used I was pronounced sound and well.

Hundreds of scars can now be seen on me, looking like a man who had been buried and then restored. My case was well known in this country, and the number of observers and visitors who were affected, I think it my duty to give facts to the public, and to extend my heartfelt thanks for so valuable a remedy. I have been well over twelve months, and no return of the disease has occurred.

Prospecting for natural gas has been exciting much interest in this city and community this week. A number of stockholders of the Economic Gas-light Company, accompanied by an expert from Pittsburgh, visited the old gas well at Stedmantown where a fine prospect for petroleum was discovered. The City Council has granted permission to the same company to re-open the old gas well on High street, but upon opening the well a rock, that had been placed over the tubing, had become removed and the opening filled with mud and fragments of stone. Workmen immediately proceeded to clean this out, and the expert will return next week to complete the examination.

There is every reason to believe that a large natural gas well will be found at this point. Mr. Diamond, of Lexington, who bored this well, has written to a prominent citizen, expressing his opinion that natural gas will be found at a depth of 1500 feet sufficient to supply ten cities the size of Frankfort. A bonanza is now almost within the grasp of this corporation, and no "outsider" can get within a mile of a share of stock.

On Monday last, at the Court-house, Hon. Joseph H. Gardner, of Magoffin county, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, in a short, sensible speech of a few minutes announced his candidacy for that position, which was listened to with attention and received with many kind expressions of approval. He was followed by Hon. B. F. Duvall, who denied that the report of his candidacy for the Legislature was a joke, but earnestly protested his determination to fight it out to a finish. He next proceeded to answer the query which appeared in these columns a few weeks since, whether or not our candidates for the Legislature were in favor of free turnpikes.

He referred to the Auditor's report, and stated that it showed that the State and counties owned many millions of dollars in these improvements, while individuals owned the larger portion of stock in them; that it would be impracticable and unjust, to deprive individuals of this property without making due compensation; and it appeared to him that the better way to attain the much wished for right to free travel, would be for the counties to commence by levying taxes and buying out the stock of individuals, or receiving it from them as a gift, and after the counties had thus become the owners of all the stock, they would afford free travel to the citizens by imposing the taxes necessary to keep them in proper repair. He expressed a willingness to obey the people's wishes in this matter, and insisted that the people, by mass-meetings, should instruct him what measures he must adopt as their Representative on this subject. He further said that he did not intend to use money or whisky to debauch the voters as a means to secure his election, but reserved to himself the right to take a drink when he wanted to, and to "treat a friend" if he wanted to. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. James Andrew Scott was loudly called for, and that gentleman being present arose, and after thanking the people for calling him declined to speak on this occasion, but promised to be heard from soon. Both of these gentlemen will have ample opportunity to explain to the people their views on all public questions before the Democratic primary election, as the 4th day of June, 1887, has been fixed for that election. Either of these gentlemen, if elected, would make an acceptable and industrious Representative, and it is now conceded that no other aspirant will offer for this nomination.

The Methodist Church, in this city, is to have some handsome improvements in a short time. The building is to be extended fifteen feet nearer the street, with a stone front and beautiful spire erected. A Sunday school and lecture room will be put in, to occupy the second story over the entrance and the space at present occupied by the gallery. A memorial stone of the late Jacob Swigert, sr., will be inserted in the wall in the addition. The Quarterly Conference met on Saturday and authorized the official board of the church to proceed with the building. The improvements will cost about $5,000, the larger portion of which has already been subscribed. The design of the new front can be seen at the furniture store of Mr. R. Rogers, on Main street.

What is the necessity for Franklin county breeders of fine horses taking them to Lexington to sell? Why can't we have a grand combination sale of our own? Franklin raises as many fine horses, both trotters and runners, as some of our neighbors in the Blue-grass, and there is no reason why Frankfort should not invite buyers of fine stock to come here annually to make purchases. Won't some enterprising citizen make arrangements to have a sale next spring? There's money in it for some one.

The Democratic county committee on Monday adopted a resolution requesting the voters to assemble at the place where elections are held at 2:30 o'clock p. m. on Saturday, April 23, 1887, for the purpose of selecting delegates to represent Franklin county in the State Democratic Convention, to be held in Louisville on May 4, 1887. The committee also called a primary election to be held in the county on Saturday, June 4, 1887, for the purpose of selecting a nominee for the Legislature.

The trial of Frank Egbert, Richard Johnson and Robert Evans, for assault upon John Fahy, was concluded in the Circuit Court Saturday afternoon, the jury returning a verdict of \$100 fine and fourteen days confinement in jail for each of the defendants. E. C. Went showed us a block $\frac{3}{4}$ inches in length, 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches in width, and $\frac{7}{8}$ of an inch in thickness, which represents \$50,000 in greenbacks after it has been cancelled by the U. S. Government, pulped and pressed into this block. The only reminder of its past greatness is the odor that it still retains. Money is, after all, a matter of small importance.

As the tow boat Huston Combs was bringing a barge of coal containing 11,000 bushels through Lock No. 4, on Thursday, the current was so strong as to force the barge against the cribbing, where it became unmanageable, broke loose from the tow boat and was carried over the falls. In going over it broke in two pieces and sunk. The coal was consigned to Miles & Son.

We would notify all who may feel aggrieved by any errors of omission or commission in this issue, that the editor may offer as an excuse that he was in Buffalo, New York, this week attending a convention of Royal Templars of Temperance. Let no such apologies divert you from visiting upon him the punishment he so richly deserves. All such offenses were committed wilfully and maliciously, therefore shoot him on the spot.

Councilmen Ferguson and Mangan have just returned from an extensive tour of observation through the South. They visited Montgomery, Birmingham, New Orleans, Pensacola and Geronimo. They report Birmingham hysterical, and Geronimo a brawny "hair-lifter," and that porpoises are ferocious on the gulf coast.

Mr. Mangan states that his associate barely saved his life by not going in swimming where the porpoises were spouting and rolling. Mr. Ferguson thinks his associate failed utterly to make a close inspection of Geronimo under the delusive pretext that snakes were prevalent, where Geronimo was engaged clearing the ground of roots and brush.

On Tuesday afternoon the tow boat Excel, of Cincinnati, having in tow a barge of coal consigned to Abramana Bros., when just below the railroad bridge in this city ran the barge against a snag, breaking a large hole, which began filling it rapidly, but by the use of steam siphons, the crew managed to keep the barge afloat until the damage was repaired.

Musie Hall was comfortably filled by an appreciative audience last night, to witness the best dramatic efforts ever given good fortune to see. The plot is most interesting, hinging upon a murder, an innocent man being accused and executed for the crime—his rescue from the jaws of death by his twin brother—his loss of sight—its ultimate restoration, and the restoration of the girl friend, the instrumentation of the drunken witness. To produce these results a scaffold scene, a railroad train and other effects are vividly produced, being very realistic, while the characters that furnish the motive power for the concern are finely drawn and most artistically portrayed by a company of actors who are first class. We doubt if ever there was so much laughter and applause heard in one night for one play. Mr. Stetson's delineation of the drunken witness was very artistic and amusing, while the intense suffering of the female victim of circumstantial evidence was heartrending.—Dixton (U.S.)

In Memoriam.

FEB.—At her home near Bridgewater, Ky., Feb. 10, 1887, Mrs. Alice Cardwell, wife of Biley Cardwell, aged 35 years, left this world, leaving a husband and eight children to mourn her loss. Her funeral took place at the Antioch cemetery, where she was interred in the churchyard by the side of her brother, who preceded her about two years ago. "She was a widow, and I have all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give ye rest." For the tired hands that remain with the people of God. No grander thing can be said than that she loved the Lord her God and that she was tenacious of her religion, just as though she had fought a good fight; having finished her course and kept the faith, she has gone to receive the crown which the Lord has in store for her.

What is the matter at the Forks of Elkhorn? No school. Come brother Burdin you must, with your brother trustees, give the people there a good shaking up. There is no good reason why the Forks should not do as well, if not better, than Bridgeport.

Teachers, trustees, and friends of the common schools must not forget "Arbor Day." The first Saturday in April is the day set apart for its observance, and we hope to hear of all our country school yards being beautified on that day. Come boys and girls if the "Old Forks" won't help you,

COUNTY SUP'T.Catarrh Cured.

DAWSON, Ga., Dec. 17, 1886.

For fully nine years I had catarrh. For five years I had it in the very worst form, how obnoxious that is I need not recount. I was under treatment of all of the most celebrated physicians in the United States, but he was unable to do me any good. In despair, I resorted to numerous patent medicines that I saw advertised, but of no avail. Finally about six months ago I began to take S. S. S. in sheer desperation, but with little hope and no faith in it. To-day I am comparatively well indeed. I have seen so much success in the S. S. S. that although skeptical of its merits, I am compelled by the benefit I have derived from it, to testify to its unquestioned curative powers in catarrh cases. The best compliment I can pay it is that I have recently recommended it to a number of my warmest personal friends. MRS. C. E. KENDRICK.
